Preface

THIS BOOK CONTAINS the genealogical records of many families of early Milford, Connecticut. The records are arranged alphabetically by family name, under which may also be found the names and records of allied families. To facilitate the search for an allied family the reader is advised to consult the index at the back of the book.

The Society gratefully acknowledges its indebtedness to Susan Woodruff Abbott and her late husband, Morris W. Abbott, for making available for publication the results of research done by them over a period of more than fifty years.

The completed work was edited and prepared for publication in the Society's office by Jacquelyn L. Ricker.

Foreword

THE FAMILIES TRACED HERE include those called Free Planters, who settled Milford in 1639, those who came soon afterward and who are called After Planters, and, in addition, other families who were in the town at an early date and of whom there is a significant amount of information available.

These are in no sense complete genealogies of any of the families but rather an assembling of information about them while they resided in Milford. No attempt has been made to bring all of them down to the present time, except where the information was available.

Much of what follows is based on the work of Nathan Gillett Pond (1832-1894), who sorted out the families by studying land, probate and church records; historian Nathan Stowe (1844-1935), who added more information; and George Clarke Bryant of Ansonia (1873-1947), who accumulated still more information while researching the Clark(e) family. The Pond and Bryant manuscripts are in the collection of the New Haven Colony Historical Society.

By searching the vital, land, probate, church and private records (mortality and other), I have been able to add a great deal of information, but I freely acknowledge my indebtedness to the above men, and to some extent to Donald Lines Jacobus' Ancient Families of New Haven and History and Genealogy of the Families of Old Fairfield.

I had no intention of placing this work in print, but have been persuaded by many interested genealogists to do so for the use of future generations.
