

"Rodrigo Diaz, el Cid, señor de Valencia, born about 1043, died 1099 married 1074 Jimena Diaz, died about 1115, daughter of Diego, Conde de Oviedo (of uncertain parentage) by Cristina, daughter of Fernando Gundemariz and Jimena de León. The latter was the daughter, possibly illegitimate, of Alfonso V, King Emperor of Leon, born 994, died 1028."

The surviving children of the Cid were two daughters, of whom the younger, Maria Rodriguez (c. 1080-1105), married about 1098, as his first wife, Ramón Berenguer III, Conde de Barcelona, born 1082, died 1131. From their daughter Jimena, the counts of Foix are descended. The statement in George's Genealogical Tables, 5th ed. (1916), table 37, that Berenguela of Barcelona, wife of Alfonso VII of Castile and Leon, was a daughter of Maria Rodriguez, is incorrect. Apparently Berenguela's mother was Ramón Berenguer's third wife, Dulce of Provence.

The elder daughter of the Cid, Cristina Rodriguez (c. 1077-1116), married about 1098, Ramiro, señor de Monzón. Their son Garcia VII (d. 1150), King of Navarre, was father of Blanca (d. 1156), who married 1151 Sancho III (c. 1134-1158), King of Castile. Their son, Alfonso VIII (1155-1214), King of Castile, was father of Berenguella (1171-1244), who married 1197 Alfonso IX (1171-1230), King of Leon. Their son, Fernando III (1199-1252), King of Castile and Leon, was father of Eleanor, wife of King Edward I of England.

Genealogists everywhere should be grateful to Mr. Evans for calling attention to this interesting pedigree from the Spanish hero, and to the recent Spanish publication which corrects previously accepted errors.

Gen. J. E. B. Stuart's cavalry. He was in most of the Virginia battles from the second Bull Run to Gettysburg, was wounded in a charge at Williamsburg, and shortly after was taken prisoner but was later exchanged; was promoted to Brigadier General for "active and brilliant service." He led his men in fifty-nine engagements and is described as "one of the most stubborn and desperate fighters of the Cavalry of the South." Shortly after the battle of Fredericksburg, he was elected to the Confederate Congress, but remained in the field to the close of the Valley Campaign, 1864. He resigned his Commission in the Army, Oct. 6, 1864, and took his seat in the Confederate Congress. On April 23, 1865, in an open letter, he allied himself with the Republican party, because he felt the Democrats had brought on the war. This step estranged many of his old associates from him.

On January 11, 1848 he married Lucy Penn Taylor, daughter of Henry Taylor of North Carolina and great-granddaughter of John Penn, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence from North Carolina.

He became president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway and was made receiver in 1875. He supported General Grant for the presidency, and in 1880 was tendered the Navy portfolio by President Hayes, but declined on account of business engagements. In 1881 was tendered the Republican nomination for Governor, but declined; was state Senator, 1882-1884 and 1884-1888, and managed the Garfield Campaign in Virginia. A bronze statue of heroic size was erected to his memory in Monroe Park, Richmond, unveiled October 29, 1891.

Note. This completes all the entries in the first volume of Milford vital records. It should be explained that some unauthorized and unqualified person has at some time written over a few of the earlier indistinct entries, doubtless with the laudable intention of making them more legible. The result has been to alter a few names which this unknown bungler misread. We have printed the record as it now reads, and corrected two or three entries in brackets. The copy at the Milford Town Hall, made many years ago by or under the direction of the historian Lambert, before the record was over-written, is in some entries more accurate than the present reading of the original record.
